rather lengthy, I heard you mention something about childcare facilities. Can you repeat that again how you're changing that from the existing statute on childcare facilities?

SENATOR JENSEN: It talks about the license must be displayed by the licensee. That's a provision. It also requires the licensure of person providing childcare programs, and establishes a fee in that process. It also then changes and adds provisions related to the discipline of a childcare license facility. And then it goes on to talk about how that disciplinary action is imposed. If the...I think that's primarily it.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Primarily, Senator, primarily what it does then is it strengthens the safety issues and so on of childcare facilities. It does raise...did you say it did raise their license also?

SENATOR JENSEN: Yes, and for, let's see, a $25 license to operate a program for fewer than 30, a $50 license for serving 30 children or more.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Okay, so it does raise those on in-home day cares with, say, fewer than 10 children or whatever that regulation is. The reason I'm asking these questions, Senator, is because several years ago I carried some legislation to strengthen the rules in childcare facilities. My family was the victim of some circumstances that happened in a childcare facility. My grandson was left in a facility. They closed the facility and he was about six months old, and my daughter-in-law came to pick the child up and there was no one there. She could hear him crying inside, and trying to find the operator of that facility, which was a larger childcare facility. And at that time we did work on some legislation that tried to address those kinds of situations. So I commend you for taking another look at childcare facilities because we, in the lifestyle that we live today, very few mothers do stay home and take care of their children. Because of the economic times that we have, it takes two to make a living anymore, where it used to take one. But anything we can do to make those facilities, whether it is a large one or an in-home day-care center with just a few
