March 24, 2004 LR 209

accomplished. It can't be accomplished if we're all a bunch of naysayers and say, well, it isn't valuable, we don't need it, it costs too much money, we can't afford it. Well, it's not going to cost a lot of money, but it's going to cost a little money. And as a result, it can be turned around and made into something that I think we can all be proud of. Again, I'm not going to support Senator Bourne's proposition, because I don't think we need to engage in other activities in order to get the fair on track. If there are enough people who think that that's the right thing to do, why, that's fine. I'll accept whatever the body wants to do. I just don't think that we need to engage on any more activities out of the same amount of money that we're going to try to gather up to make the fair what we expect it to be and what it was and what it can be. So I just want to make the record clear that I support the fair, I support the future of the fair, because I think it has a future. Now, there are those who would object and disagree with that. But everybody has a right to their opinion. I think if its management is correct, which I think it is now, and the vision is there, and I think it is now, then I think the fair can prosper and be a part of the institution of this state. It's not the Lincoln Fair; it's the State Fair. It's in Lincoln, yeah, that's correct, and it has to be somewhere, obviously. But we as a state need to understand that it does provide a valuable service to the youth of this state, the 4-H, the FFA, the kids that labor all year long and come in to be able to show their wares and be able to show the pride that they have in what they're doing. We need that. We have the county fairs, and everybody...at least many, many people go to the county fairs. And if this fair can have a future...it can have a future, if we're willing to provide a little extra money into the coffers to do the things that the fair board members are trying to do, the manager is trying to do, has a vision that it takes to make this successful, it can be done. And we don't have to move it. We don't have to change it. We just have to do some upgrading. And some of the things that have been laid out, with the study that was done to show what the future of the fair can be with the right kind of management and the right kind of vision, I think it can be accomplished. So even though I don't support the Bourne amendment, because...and I understand, you know, there's nothing wrong with ideas coming forth.
