FLOOR DEBATE

April 1, 2004

to see a combination of all three, but apparently that's not going to happen. So if we have to go at it a piece at a time, sobeit. Let's go one piece at a time. I know what Senator Chambers is going to do. He doesn't like the sales tax. But where income tax brings in money from most everyone, sales tax does hit those other folks who, you know, don't own any property, they work by the day or the month or the year, yeah, and they're buying goods. We all have to buy something with sales tax on it. But a modest increase in the sales tax I don't think is (inaudible). We're talking about a quarter of a cent, .25, for a little over a year. That's not too bad. If you went into the hardware store and bought a new wrench, would you notice that? Heck no, you wouldn't. But in the big picture, it does bring in a considerable amount of money. So I'm trying to do, you know, it may fall on deaf ears, but if we have to go at this one piece at a time, sobeit. So I hope you will adopt this portion because if you don't and this goes away, Senator Hartnett is going to be right back again. Oh, I think he is. Well, he's not going to be back here next year, but he'll be in with his proposal. So anyway, I hope you will see fit to at least start this out and get the income tax portion on. Thank you.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Thank you, Senator Janssen. Senator Beutler is next, followed by Senators Kremer and Chambers.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Call the question.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Senator Beutler calls the question. Do I see five hands? I see five hands. The question is, shall debate cease? All in favor vote aye; all opposed vote nay. Have you all voted? Have you all voted who wish to vote? Mr. Clerk, record please.

CLERK: 25 ayes, 1 nay, Madam President, to cease debate.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Debate has ceased. Senator Janssen, you're recognized to close on FA1654.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Thank you, Senator Schimek. I believe my last speech was pretty much of a closing. I don't have much more to
