FLOOR DEBATE

April 7, 2004

it's appropriate, and had discussions about it, he ought to follow through on it. You all say that I bluff, that I'm smoke and mirrors. Some of you all know better. I say a lot of you all bluff, that you're mere puffery. You're like a cereal called Puffed Wheat, when I was growing up--a whole lot of appearance, but no substance whatsoever. You put one of them in your mouth, and you got nothing. For those of you all who like State Fair images, it's like cotton candy, a big old fluffy white something on a piece of paper, and you open your mouth as wide as a hippopotamus and stick it in there, and when you close it you've got nothing in your mouth. That's what a lot of my colleagues are, all talk, all bluster, and they carry things when the "Emperor" does the work on the outside. You don't see the "Emperor" out there now, do you? Because he's given you your marching orders. And he didn't know this subject would come up this morning, but he doesn't care, because he's got you locked in. I just think that Senator Janssen ought to...

SPEAKER BROMM: Time.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...keep in mind the 31 that I gave him, the 31 names.

SPEAKER BROMM: (Visitors introduced.) Senator Chambers, you're recognized to close on your motion.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you. Mr. Speaker and members of the Legislature, if you all don't want me to talk on any more of these bills on Final Reading, don't you get up here and put motions on them to make a record and you're not serious about carrying the motion through. That's my advice. But if you want to make a motion, you have the right to do so, and I welcome it. I've got a lot more that I can say, a lot more that I will say. But I had no intention when I came here to say anything on Final Reading. But the door was open, and I have to finish that which I was going to tell you all about how a black man must do when it comes to that door that opportunity knocks on. We don't get many breaks. They say opportunity knocks once. We have to be poised at that door. And when opportunity's hand rises, if there is a sliver between the edge of the door and the door jamb, we have to shoot through it right then. We can't wait for
