April 14, 2004 LB 1083

Human Services, I want the oversight committee, I want the Health and Human Services Committee all focusing on ways to prevent situations like this from ever happening again. I'm not trying to stop the bill. I'm not trying to prevent its passage. I'm certainly going to vote for the bill. But I think that neighborhood's concerns were real, they were genuine, and they were very, very upset and they deserve not only some answers to their questions, but they need to know that because of that little boy's trauma that we are going to put some measures in place that reassure our neighborhoods and our communities that having a group home in their neighborhoods is not going to be a detrimental thing, and I think that's very important for us to be able to do. I like what Senator Beutler has done on focusing on those questions that the neighborhoods had, and I'd like to use the rest of my time to talk a little bit about a couple of those questions. One of the things that the neighbors ask us the other evening was, are group homes required to provide periodic information to neighbors? In other words, how do the neighbors or the...how does the neighborhood know that there is somebody living in their community that may not be a sex offender at the third level but might be one at the second level or the first level, which are less dangerous to others? And there did not seem to be any way that neighborhoods would be informed unless it were a Level 3. And what the neighbors wanted to know in this instance was if you have a Level 3 sex offender, of course you're going to find that on a web site. It's public information. But if it's a Level 2 sex offender, as it was not in the case of the perpetrator in this case but one of the other persons living in this group home, how do the neighbors know about it? The schools are informed, but it's not public information. And the neighborhood wanted to know shouldn't they know if there is somebody living in their midst. So that was a question that was communicated to us, and they were very concerned about it. And then another question that Senator Beutler speaks of in this list of his relates to that, and that is, should people with violent or dangerous behaviors, or those who are sexual offenders, be located in neighborhoods at all or should they be...
