this one?

SENATOR BURLING: I'm here as long as you are, Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I don't know if you ought to say it like that. You might be challenging the mouse-god.

SENATOR BURLING: (Laugh) Okay.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: If nothing happens, if no unkind fate intervenes, you would stay as long as I will stay.

SENATOR BURLING: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay. Senator Burling, have you, up to this point, achieved any legislative success that would equal the caliber of this one, in your opinion?

SENATOR BURLING: This has been...this would be the high...a high priority of mine since I've been here, yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I want our colleagues to know that. Let's say that this bill is enacted into law and it takes the form of the amended committee amendment, which now is the bill. How soon...does this bill have the emergency clause?

SENATOR BURLING: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: How soon after it takes effect are the appointments supposed to have been completed?

SENATOR BURLING: We don't say in the bill how soon the appointments have to be completed, but I think they would be completed soon so the study can get started.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Is there anything in the bill which says when the study must commence?

SENATOR BURLING: No.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: There is no requirement that the Exec Board
