report writing, patrol techniques and observing unusual circumstances, safety and security awareness, or use of force. And we think that all of these are very important, particularly if they are trying to control large groups of people. Also, if they are going to carry a firearm, there is an approved firearms training course, and there are a number of provisions that are included in order to obtain that permit in the firearms area. The Secretary of State has willingly consented to use their department for the licensing of these individuals. And some people might ask, why did we select the Secretary of State's Office? Right now, they do the private investigators licenses which are required here in this state, and we think that this fit very well with that area, and so that is why we have included it. Also, the bill has an advisory committee, which I think is very important. The advisory committee...

PRESIDENT SHEEHY: One minute.

SENATOR STUHR: ...will advise the Secretary of State as they are writing the rules and the regs. And that advisory committee will be made up of two members at large, one member of the law enforcement community, one higher education instructor, one attorney, one contract security service representative, and one proprietary security service representative. So we have a vast array of people that will be serving on that advisory committee. With that, that just reviews some of the provisions of the bill, and I will continue to be happy to answer any questions that you might have. Thank you.

PRESIDENT SHEEHY: Thank you, Senator Stuhr. Senator Chambers, followed by Senator Schimek.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. President, members of the Legislature, some people think if they keep a very low profile, stay quiet, and try to blend in with the background, they'll be passed over. But that doesn't always happen around here. I see Senator Pahls sitting over there in the front row, far right, minding his own business, doing nothing to harm anybody, apparently. But nothing gets past him. I'd like to ask Senator Pahls a question.
