FLOOR DEBATE

January 20, 2006 LB 72

Although there was a song which made me have suspicion, Senator Mines, when on television I'd hear (singing) B-i-n-g-o, B... I knew then that Bingo might have been his name, but it probably wasn't a saint's name, because it was not a religious program. Bringing it back to what we have before us here today, I'm going to continue to make references to that NRA bill, because there is a tie-in between what is contained in it and what is in Senator Stuhr's bill, what may ultimately be in her bill. But since Senator Stuhr is willing to be rational, which the supporters of the NRA atrocity are not, because they're dealing with an insane organization and taking orders from an insane organization, a deranged organization, I'm going to work with Senator Stuhr to the extent that I can to try to get meaningful regulation. These people who go about armed as security guards, or security officers, as they will be called, are going to have to take meaningful training and requalify in the use of these guns,...

PRESIDENT SHEEHY: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...so that we don't have people one time presenting what the bill refers to as evidence of training and competency in the handling of these weapons. Even when the bill says that the person must demonstrate competency, it doesn't say how that competency is to be demonstrated. It doesn't say the circumstances under which that competency is to be demonstrated. But we'll work our way through those things. So instead of just taking time, there are recommendations along the way that I intend to make, and it's going to put some people in a bind. Because, whereas we will require this for people who are at least going to be licensed and trained and all these other things, you're going to let all these miscellaneous scary people that Senator Combs represents come out of the silo without nearly the requirements on them that will be on those under this bill.

PRESIDENT SHEEHY: Time, Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT SHEEHY: Thank you, Senator Chambers. The question
