anywhere. And I am so concerned about how quiet it is on this state among public officials as far as statements being made and outrage being expressed, because I'm reading more and more articles about the lamentations going skyward based on the cheating that students are involved in. And I don't think they ought to cheat, but that's living in a world that does not exist for real. And my comments earlier could be considered Machiavellian in nature only for this reason. Machiavelli did not lie. He was not an evil man. He studied history more carefully than others, analyzed it, and every statement he suggested in The Prince,...

PRESIDENT SHEEHY: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...and The Discourses was based on evidence derived from history and the experiences of persons called princes, and that term was applied to any ruler. Machiavelli simply told the truth, and people couldn't stand it. He knew the way things ought to be, and he would say that. Then he'd say, but in the real world, this is the way it operates. So I was telling these young people what happens in the real world, and I invited them to look around themselves and see it playing out among those who are to be their examples--the Board of Regents and the legislators who don't read the legislation, who are dictated to by forces outside the Legislature and don't have enough principle to do what they know is right, because somebody told them, do it this way. Thank you, Mr. President. Thank you, Senator Schrock.

PRESIDENT SHEEHY: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Further discussion on FA357? Senator Chambers, you're recognized to close.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Mr. President. Members of the Legislature, I wish Senator Bourne were here, but he's probably someplace resting, because he's young and strong and got a whole lot of stamina. I'm the one he said was going to wear out and be...well, he didn't say panting with my tongue hanging out, but that was the image he tried to project, because I am so old. And I want you youngsters to know that I am old and I revel in my agedness. You'll never see me using creams or injections to
