FLOOR DEBATE

February 15, 2006 LB 188

SENATOR CUDABACK: Senator Brashear, would you yield to a question of Senator Chambers?

SENATOR BRASHEAR: I will, Mr. President.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Brashear, when you said everybody agrees that there's been a full and fair debate, did that everybody include me, when you made the statement?

SENATOR BRASHEAR: No, it didn't, Senator Chambers. We noted your absence.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And, well, I've been in and out. I just haven't spoken.

SENATOR BRASHEAR: I wasn't being critical.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Oh, you probably...

SENATOR BRASHEAR: I wouldn't be critical.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...were pleased. I know. Thank you, Senator Brashear. That's all I wanted, just to lighten the mood before I get started. (Laughter) I don't mean that quite the way that it sounded, or the way it was taken. I just heard a brief reference to David Hergert, the Horrible. I don't like the man. I don't like what he has done. I've received phone calls and letters from people who have talked to me about the way he has dealt in drilling wells, running cattle at night across the border so he doesn't have to pay the small amount per head, even cutting corners on a hunting license. The man is petty, he is dishonest, and contrary to what somebody said about there not being a certitude that he had blatantly violated any laws, it is a certainty that he did blatantly violate laws. I think the Attorney General has an obligation to go forward with filing charges, and there is no way that I would excuse the Attorney General for not doing so. When people say that this kangaroo judge, Burns, has concluded the matter with his order that he issued yesterday, they have not read it well. He did a lot of speculating. His writing is not crisp, his arguments do not
