or Section 28-1202 on any given occasion, except if the United States or the state of Nebraska shall be at war, the body weight of the licensee shall be multiplied by 10 times the licensee's admitted age, then divided into the year of the licensee's birth, plus 137.5, then add the number of inches of the licensee's height, rounded up to the next full inch, which shall be subtracted from the number of the current century, which is the 21st, if the number of the current century exceeds the other number; otherwise, subtract the number of the current century from the other number. Then after multiplying...Senator Mines is not taking this seriously. And this is to determine how many pistols a person can carry, so I think he ought to pay attention, instead of mocking me. Multiply the size (laughter) of the licensee's right shoe by three times the girth of the licensee's weight after a full meal, measured and certified by a professional tailor, subtract the sum obtained by adding together the digits in the licensee's Social Security number, which number shall be made known only to the licensing authority and any employee thereof who shall be guilty of a Class IB felony, for any unauthorized disclosure of the number to any other person. Then--and here's where I made a mistake; it was caught by another official. I had said "divide;" it should be "multiply." Then divide the grand total by three-fifths of the number on line 17 of the licensee's personal income tax return, federal, for the immediately preceding year. But if the licensee is not required by law to file a federal income tax return or if the licensee failed to file a tax return for the immediately preceding year and has not been indicted for failure to file the return, this step should be disregarded, and in its stead the licensee's home address--no post office box number is acceptable--multiplied by ten, if the address contains four or fewer digits, but by six and five-tenths if such address contains five or more digits, but in no case shall the number of pistols carried concealed exceed the number of the licensee's pockets at the time of being approached, stopped, accosted, interrogated, or otherwise contacted by any sworn law enforcement officer and any other suitable hiding places, including but not limited to--and I want to pause here to tell why I'm doing this. This bill, if such a thing is possible, is worse than the one that Senator Foley prevailed upon the body to advance this morning. So this amendment is in spirit with the
