world they kept it secret--dullest, "boringest" thing I had ever stumbled or fallen into in my life! A convocation of superannuated undertakers would have had more life than these "Repelicans." And they all had on these charcoal grey suits, all of them! If you needed eyeglasses, as I now need them--because as you get older and you use your eyes a lot, wear and tear will exact a toll--and you lined them on a wall across the front of that room as far from me as I am from that wall and I didn't have my glasses on, I couldn't tell you had a group of people. It would have looked like just a wide charcoal grey swath across the wall, with some pink dots on top, spaced every so much distance. That's what they were. Shortly thereafter they stopped having their caucus meetings. Oh, I talked about them! I don't know why they consider anything they do secret. Then they tell on each other. But anyway, let me get back to Senator Combs' serious--it's deadly serious--bill, which ought not to be enacted into law. The NRA pulled her aside and said, Senator Combs, by God, you got some cities out there in Nebraska where you live, and they might not want their citizens toting concealed pistols. And by God, we want to have something done about that. We want every state, every village, every hamlet, from the Governor's house to the outhouse, and including the dog house, allowing folks to carry concealed pistols. That's the NRA's position, and by God, we're going to prevail, and we know we will, because we heard Senator Schrock on the floor say he told the NRA...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...he'd support them, and he's going to do it. So an amendment was drafted to take away from the cities the authority to pass an ordinance disallowing the carrying of concealed weapons. So if she clotures the bill, that's not going to be in it. If she clotures it, Senator Mines' amendment will not be in it. Senator Stuthman's amendments will not be in it. And it's my job, brothers and sisters, to make sure, by utilizing the rules, that she has no opportunity to carry out the nefarious will of that execrable organization, known by the initials NRA, aka National Rifle Association. Now they control the President.
