person there, whether they're physician's assistants or whether there's doctors come in on a part-time basis. I think when I was looking at the other deal, they have it at, what, once or twice a month or something like that. That's what...there's someone around there that covers some of these areas. But how they're funding is I don't know, but I think probably if you're going to increase the number of facilities out there, you'd probably increase the amount of money, such as Senator Janssen has done, I guess.

SENATOR THOMPSON: Okay. Thank you. Thank you very much. I think Senator Louden has pretty good coverage and people who know where these resources are and probably people who take advantage of that on a regular basis. And you could probably go through that with every senator for the rest of these. If we're going to adopt the language which Senator Foley has put into the bill, then we need to put the funding in. Otherwise, you're going to be squeezing these existing providers. You know, I don't like the language. I don't like the language because I think we should be doing it the way we've always done it. And if someone comes into one of these clinics that needs help, they should be able to get all the help provided on the list. We shouldn't have people cherry-picking things off the list. We should be comprehensive. But, you know, he won that battle. So I think we have the responsibility to make sure that we're getting the services; that the places that historically are providing those services and doing a good job, and I heard him say...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR THOMPSON: ...that that was fine, that they can continue to provide those services and add some more money to take care of the women in York, maybe other places that may need an additional provider or two. I think that would be good. We already know that they run out of money for this program before the end of the year, so it's been an underfunded program to start with. But let's keep this existing core of services that weren't even provided in the state until the 1990s, let's keep them in place. We have huge problems in this state with sexually transmitted diseases, particularly in the Omaha area.
