FLOOR DEBATE

March 22, 2006 LB 968

exemptions. Correct?

SENATOR REDFIELD: No.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So you choose those that, to you, for whatever reason, seem to have enough merit to justify you in departing from your ordinary opposition to exemptions.

SENATOR REDFIELD: I would say that the two times that I remember departing from that, it was to increase economic activity so that we could actually increase the gross domestic product in the state.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Two times?

SENATOR REDFIELD: Those are the two that I remember.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Would that make you a two-timer?

SENATOR REDFIELD: (Laugh) I hope not.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: That's all I will ask you. Thank you, Senator. Members of the Legislature, what Senator Redfield articulated is something that most of us operate in accord with. We pick and choose those things which we think ought to be given a certain type of treatment. And it does not matter to us how other entities, individuals, organizations, and whatnot, may be treated. If there's one that we favor, we support it. I favor and support help for the poor, for those who are unable to see to their own interests. That's where my interest is. And there are other areas, such as dealing with huge businesses, where I have no sympathy...

SPEAKER BRASHEAR PRESIDING

SPEAKER BRASHEAR: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...whatsoever, and I do all that I can to oppose their coming in and plundering the public till. I do everything I can, except for those instances when Senator Wehrbein has persuaded me to do otherwise, to oppose and prevent
