finally, probably the last two are the most important letters. One is from a teacher and she says that she wants all of her students to fulfill their potential, and she says she is sometimes confronted with the fact that she can't tell her students that they can go on to higher education, and she's very hopeful that this year we are going to make this a reality. She says: We are now confronted with a generation in our state that is grading from high school with hopes and aspirations of continuing their education at the university level and contributing to our society as a whole. And the last one, from a young woman in Omaha, who says...

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: ...she was born in Mexico, and I'm going to take an opportunity to read this whole letter at a later time. I'm going to give the rest of my time right now to Senator Ray Aguilar, Mr. President.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Senator Aguilar.

SENATOR AGUILAR: Thank you, Mr. President. Thank you, DiAnna Schimek. I just want to real quickly point out something that's very important here. First, I'm going to cover one more tax issue, and that's Social Security taxes. All these workers pay Social Security taxes. The difference between you and them, me and them, is they'll never collect a dime of that. They will never collect a dime of those Social Security taxes. Those go into our system, if you will. And the other thing that I think is the most important point I can make, we have to pass this, this year, folks. It has to happen. Senator Schimek has spent a myriad of time convincing senators to support this, and done an excellent job of it. We can't start all over with 21 new senators next year. It won't happen. We have to do it this year. Please support this issue. Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Aguilar and Senator Schimek. Senator Stuthman, followed by Senator Jensen.

SENATOR STUTHMAN: Thank you, Mr. President and members of the body.   I've been listening very closely to this and I think
