FLOOR DEBATE

April 10, 2006 LB 745

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay. So let's say you have a track and you give jobs to, say, ten more people, just so it's easy for me. Then you install these machines and people begin to lose money and lose money. Then maybe we ought to want the track to keep going so that when these people lose their money and they've got to stick somebody up, they won't go in a store and stick somebody up, they'll stick up somebody who got a job at the track and has some money. That's kind of a good way to think about it; isn't it?

SENATOR AGUILAR: I think not.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, why not? Who should they stick up?

SENATOR AGUILAR: I don't think they should stick anyone up, Senator.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But if they're...well, I don't think anybody should stick up anybody, but we know that there are stick-up persons. Do you agree with that? Do you agree with that?

SENATOR AGUILAR: I wouldn't agree with any kind of a stick-up, Senator.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: No, I'm saying you agree that there are people who stick up people, though.

SENATOR AGUILAR: I've heard that.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Okay. Now they're going to stick up somebody. Would you rather they stick up a person who works for the racetrack, or go into a store that's crowded and maybe a lot of innocent people get hurt? Who would you rather have stuck up?

SENATOR AGUILAR: I don't want to make that decision, Senator.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, you're not the stick-up man. You don't have to make the decision. And it's not going to happen, but I'm just trying to get your thinking in terms of how risk ought
