This bill would change the duration of harassment, sexual assault, and domestic abuse protection orders and change requirements for affidavits. It extends the duration of protection orders from one year to five years, and it also states that a petition and affidavit for protection orders are not required to be notarized.

This bill does not appear to have a significant fiscal impact to the state or political subdivisions.

The Supreme Court estimates that this bill may have an impact on court workload but any impact cannot be determined at this time.

Explanation of Estimate:

Two provisions of LB118 may have an impact on judicial and court staff workload, but the amount of any impact cannot be determined at this time. First, eliminating the requirement of a notarized petition and affidavit could increase the number of petitions for protection orders. Last, increasing the term of a protection order, could reduce the number of court appearances to extend an existing protection order. No additional resources required.
