Executive Session

Executive session is a chance for committee members to speak candidly about bills they are considering. During this meeting any committee member can suggest changes to the bill in the form of committee amendments. The committee counsel will fill out a committee statement, recording any proposed changes to the bill and what action the committee would like to take.

This session is generally closed to all members of the public, including senators who are not members of the committee. Members of the media are the only approved observers of executive sessions.
